Republican National Ticket.

For President,
BENJAMIN HARRISON.

For Vice-President,
WHITELAW REID.

Harmony in the Ranks.

Though the smoke of the great contest at Minneapolis has scarcely yet all blown away, there is ample evidence that it was in no sense a fight to the death, and that the great party leaders will be ready to stand shoulder to shoulder in the struggle which will be fully inaugurated as soon as the Chicago convention shall have determined who is to be pitted against Harrison and Reid.

Republican papers are full of commendation for the choice of the convention, and those who were otherwise inclined before the nomination, are now all disposed to swing into line, and aid in praising Harrison's administration.

Of course Democrats claim to see nothing commendable in this, but quote it as proof of a policy-loving servility that cringes and fawns before "the powers that be"; yet, as the press is in duty bound to reflect the sentiment of its patrons, its ante-nomination utterances might naturally and properly vary much from its later declarations. Before nomination all speculation, contradiction, and excitement; afterward "the die is cast"; and, if good men and true have been chosen, it is obviously the duty of the party at large and, consequently, the press as its interpreter, to stand by the ticket and show an unflinching loyalty to the principles it represents. That distinguished Blaine shouter, the Iowa State Register, well illustrates this point by a recent editorial in which it says, "With upright head and never wavering party loyalty, the Register, as one of the supporters of Blaine, yields to the dictates of fate—and the majority of the Republican delegates at Minneapolis." Then, after giving a short resume of its reasons for believing in Blaine, the Register continues, "But the majority of the Republicans of the country, speaking through their regularly appointed delegates at the National Convention, preferred that other great American whose administration has been the pride of all Republicans. Its own preferred leader defeated in an honorable contest, the Register will be second to none in loyalty to the chosen standard bearer. The contest is over. The party has spoken. The leader is named. There are no longer Blaine Republicans and Harrison Republicans—all are now simply Republicans."

It is this spirit that makes Tom Platt acknowledge that the ticket is "all right," even before the wounds of his personal pride have ceased to bleed; and it is this which brings such strong words of loyalty from the lips of Jas. G. Blaine in the very hour of his defeat. He says, "The resolution, energy, and persistence which marked the proceedings of the convention at Minneapolis will, if turned against the common foe, win the election in November. All minor differences should be merged in the duty of every Republican to do all in his power to elect the ticket nominated by the National Republican Convention." Let every one who reads these unselfish words not only venerate the lofty intellect and grand patriotism of the man who uttered them, but also make sure that he himself does his part against the "common foe." It is thus victory will be assured at the polls.

A Lively Campaign.

One of our great metropolitan dailies calls attention to the fact that every active campaign results in Republican victory, while "still hunts" bring about Democratic success; and that, therefore, it is absolutely essential that we have a wide-awake, speech-making, educational campaign.

The ball was set rolling in New York at Buffalo, on the very night when the "big two," Hon. Chauncey M. Depew and Senator Hiscock, were on their way home from Minneapolis. Weariness as they must have been, these great leaders were met by such an enthusiastic procession of Republican clubs as could not be gainsaid, and they were obliged to address them in Lafayette square, the result being that the first demonstration of the coming campaign was a rousing success. It is a strange coincidence that the first demonstration in '88 also occurred at Buffalo, though Mr. Depew, who was present at both, says the last one was much the more enthusiastic of the two.

In fact, with President Harrison in the lead, there's no such word as "fail," in Chauncey Depew's political lexicon. He calls attention to the fact that his position with the railroad places him on a coigne of advantage from which he can see the drift of the business sentiment of the country, and stoutly maintains that Harrison is stronger to-day than four years ago. If the great New Yorker knows what he is talking about, (and we believe he does) the coming campaign will be both lively and successful.

We clip the following complimentary notice of Supt. Wilson from the Adrian

Times and Expressor, which seems to refute the old saying that "A prophet has no honor in his own country."

We are sure Paw Paw will heartily endorse the concluding sentiment regarding one whose work here has just received the sanction of a re-engagement, and would feel herself honored by any distinction conferred upon the man standing at the head of her Union School.

The Times takes pleasure in announcing Prof. E. A. Wilson of the Paw Paw schools as a candidate before the Republican state convention for membership on the state board of education. Mr. Wilson is a native of this county; was brought up to sturdy manhood on a farm, graduated from the state normal school in 1879, and has been closely connected with educational matters in the county and state ever since. He was sent here as one in charge of the state teachers' institute not long since, and his influence was felt in every detail. His nomination would be a deserved compliment to a skilled educator, and add strength and completeness to the state ticket.

Anent the effort being made to place Whitelaw Reid before the country as a man at odds with labor interests, the New York Mail and Express states the situation as follows:

It will not do for the Democratic press to print bogus or boughten interviews with so-called labor leaders declaring that the workingmen will not support Whitelaw Reid for the Vice-Presidency, because of the troubles his newspaper office has had with the printers' union. We observe a disposition to do this.

It is enough to say that a delegation of the printers' union made an urgent plea before the New York delegates at Chicago for Mr. Reid's nomination and presented a signed statement asking the nomination, and declaring that he had settled to the entire satisfaction of the printers' union whatever troubles his office may have had with that body.

It was this urgent request of the printers' union that fixed the judgment of some of the New York delegates, and led them to give Mr. Reid the hearty support. Now to charge that Mr. Reid is not acceptable to the labor interests is to charge the printers' union with treachery, of which we believe it is incapable.

The Chicago convention presents many points of similarity to the great gathering at Minneapolis. The adherents of Hill and Cleveland are each as confident of their own candidate's success as were the supporters of Blaine and Harrison; the Iowa delegation shouts as loudly for Boies as did the Michigan delegation for Alger and with just about the same chance of success; Senator Palmer turns the forty-eight votes of the Illinois delegation over to Cleveland with the same loyalty which caused McKinley to refuse all requests to have his name appear in the Presidential race; and an equal number of dark horses is being groomed in case of any unforeseen culmination of affairs. We expect to see the analogy hold good throughout, and that it will again be Harrison against Cleveland, with a repetition next November of the vote of '88, but with a still larger majority for President Harrison.

Eighteen hundred and ninety-two is not a good year for manufactured political booms. Gen. Alger started and maintained a boom of his own for the Republican nomination for the Presidency, but when names were presented at Minneapolis his was not mentioned, and when the ballot was taken he did not get a vote. Mayor Pingree of Detroit is booming himself for the Republican nomination for governor, but the boom is hollow and sepulchral, and will be buried so deep when the first ballot is taken at the Saginaw convention that the enterprising mayor of the City of the Straits will not care to have its resting place noted, even by a proper epitaph. Positively it is a bad year for booms that are not spontaneous with the people.—Port Huron Times.

The Republican party showed great wisdom in sending so many untried delegates to the Minneapolis convention and leaving them free to make such selection as gave greatest promise of victory at the polls; and it is just this spirit that should govern all nominations. It is the rank and file of the people that cast the greatest number of votes, and their wishes should not be ignored when the choice is made between John T. Rich and Hazen S. Pingree. Both are good men, but the sentiment outside the cities is largely in favor of Rich and he is consequently a much stronger candidate than Pingree. With him at the head of the ticket, no "sawbuck" need apply after January 1st, 1893.

Outside his own family circle, there was probably nowhere more genuine rejoicing over the outcome of the convention than at Miami University, for it is a remarkable fact that the candidates for the two highest seats in our nation are both graduates from this college. The students were wild with joy, President O. W. Powers was overwhelmed with congratulatory telegrams, and the quiet little University town was full of excitement at the good tidings.

Perhaps the most absurd fake of the Democracy is the attempt to accuse McKinley of treachery to Harrison. As well might one declare that Damon was betrayed by his Pythias.

The Detroit Times thinks that the Democrats will have to hustle with spirit, if they are not snowed under with any candidate they may name.

And the Frightened Boy Fairly Flew.

A dirty faced little boy, incensed in a single garment of shreds and patches, was caught clinging to the rear end of a train that rolled into the Grand Central station a few nights ago. He was about four years old and small for his age. In the expressive language of a Westchester farmer, "he didn't look much bigger'n a jug'o' cider." A zealous trainman espied the tiny lad before he could dismount from his dangerous perch on the car platform. A policeman was summoned and the arrest of the marauder was demanded. The boys who catch on trains are a nuisance and should be punished maintained the trainman. A police officer 6 feet 2 inches in height and broad in proportion, took hold of one of the child's arms with his thumb and forefinger and marched the little culprit almost the entire length of the long station, a crowd of fifty or more people following.

Some of the people uttered indignant and sarcastic remarks, such as "Do you want any help, officer?" "Look out, Mr. Policeman; he'll trip you up." But the officer paid no attention to the crowd. He grimly marched his prisoner to the Forty-second street exit of the station, and with a twinkle in his eye he lifted the child in his arms and addressed him sternly thus: "Prisoner at the bar, you have been arrested. But this is your first offense. If you get arrested again you'll be punished till the full extent of the law. Now git." The youngster got out of sight in the throb of a second.—New York Times.

The Corpse "Took a Hand."

Dr. L. Cornean, author of a work entitled "Certain Signs of Death," says that he can cite ninety-six well authenticated cases where persons were buried alive by mistake. Here is one: A French army officer, on Aug. 30, 1836, was buried at Saintes with military honors. The parting salute awoke him from apparent death. He knocked upon the lid of the coffin, was heard and set at liberty. He marched back to the house of mourning at the head of the detachment that had been detailed to escort his remains to the tomb.

THE DETROIT EXPOSITION.

Many New and Interesting Features This Year.

The Detroit International Fair and Exposition Association has appointed Mr. T. F. B. Sotham, of Pontiac, manager, and, guided by the past three years' experience, has decided upon changes and additional attractions, which will make this year's exposition (August 23 to September 2), not only superior to any previously held in Detroit, but superior in many respects to any yet held in the country. One of the improvements which, as much as any other, is calculated to popularize this institution is a vast amphitheater, the arena of which is one-fifth of a mile in circumference and seating 40,000.

At one side of the bandstand, in the arena, cattle will be judged on the opposite side draft horses, and in the outer circle saddle and harness horses. The Detroit Exposition has in previous years brought together the finest displays of stock ever seen in this country. There is every indication that this year's exhibition in that line will excel any that have preceded it. With the method proposed for judging animals, the stock exhibits will be brought before thousands of people who have heretofore paid but little attention to this important branch of the country's wealth. In this arena, at stated hours daily, there will be a series of special attractions, such as the Roman hippodrome, chariot races with four horses driven abreast, midget chariot races, mule races over hurdles, all-letic contests, lightning circuits, interspersed with popular and classic music by the best bands and a great number of other attractions. The general admission to the grounds will also admit to the amphitheater, where, comfortably seated, all visitors can enjoy these varied attractions. The exhibition will be not only a pleasant entertainment but an educational institution. As one means to this end, the association will invite some of the best speakers in this country and Canada to address the people on subjects appropriate to each of the ten days. The music stand on the lawn in front of the main building will be utilized for speakers, and seats provided so that listeners can be seated within hearing of the speaker's voice.

The ground floor of the main building will be devoted exclusively to the exhibition of manufacturing in actual operation. In previous exhibitions, this idea has been carried out to a limited extent and the crowds which gathered about the alcoves in which these were conducted furnished evidence of the intense interest which attaches to them. Their scope this year will be greatly enlarged, so that visitors will have abundant opportunity to see how articles of necessity, comfort and luxury are made.

In the women's department the classification has been broadened, so that it is safe to say that household work from parlor to kitchen will be more intelligently encouraged and illustrated by this exposition than has ever before been attempted by any association in this country.

The races on the regulation track near the south end of the grounds, which were a popular feature last year, will be continued, with purses to the amount of $10,000. Many of the best horses and their several classes will appear in these speed trials, and meet meetings offer equal attractions.

There will be an unusually good display of agricultural machinery, the products of the farm, orchard and garden, all classes of manufactured products and articles of household and domestic use.

Altogether, the Fair of 1892 will be the grandest in the history of the permanent agricultural and industrial exhibitions and will be of such magnitude and varied attractiveness as to make it profitable for visitors to wait in attendance the entire ten days. Its educational features are such as to commend the association to every patriotic citizen and to insure its active support.

Days have been set apart and designated as follows, indicating something of the scope of the speaking and exercises: 1. Children, 2. Athletics, 3. Politics, 4. Ladies, 5. Industrial societies, 6. Commerce, 7. International society, 8. Music, 9. Agricultural, 10. Military and uniformed societies.

Better railway rates than ever hitherto given, viz., one fare for the round trip, have been conceded by the railways and steamboat lines; and exhibits that have prepaid freight from point of shipment will be returned free.

The most complete and comprehensive premium list ever issued is now ready for distribution free to all applicants.

THE HAMBLETONIAN STALLION, JOE GAVIN, No. 564.

Is sired by Messenger Duroc, No. 106, one of the best sons of Hambletonian 10. His dam is the great brood mare Fanny Napes, by Alexander's Abdallah, No. 15. Fanny Napes is the dam of five with an average of 2:25, besides being the dam of six producing sons. No other brood mare living or dead can make such a showing.

Who says Joe Gavin does not sire speed? He is sire of Giltie Drake 2:25, Walter Drake 2:27 1/4, Fred Drake 2:27 1/2, and Cora Bell 2:29 1/4. No horse ever stood for service in Van Buren county that is the sire of as many colts in the '90 list at the same age as Joe Gavin.

To those who desire breeding road horses at a profit, they will serve their own interests to look Joe Gavin over individually, scrutinizing his colts carefully, and last, though not least, see if his colts have the characteristics we claim for them, viz.: They have solid colors, are upheaded, stylish and gamy, have smooth limbs and good action and a disposition that subjects itself to the control of man. Can you doubt that a horse of 2 to 6 years old with the above qualifications will find a ready sale in any market at a profit to the breeder? Remember, it is past the time when fashionable breeding will sell a horse for a good price, if the individual excellence of that horse is not up to its breeding.

JOE GAVIN will make the season of 1892 at the Willard House barn.

TERMS:—$25 to insure, or $15 for the season with usual return privilege, if horse is alive and owned by me.
